AN ACT

To provide for taking the fourth Census, or enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the marshals of the several districts of the United States, and of the district of Columbia, and of the territories of Missouri, Michigan, and Arkansas, respectively, shall be, and they are hereby, authorized and required, under the direction of the secretary of State, and according to such instructions as he shall give, pursuant to this act, to cause the number of the inhabitants within their respective districts and territories to be taken, omitting, in such enumeration, Indians not taxed, and distinguishing free persons, including those bound to service for a term of years, from all others; distinguishing, also, the sexes and colors of free persons, and the free males under ten years of age; those of ten years and under sixteen; those of sixteen and under twenty; those of twenty and under twenty-five; and those of twenty-five and upwards; and also distinguishing the number of persons engaged in agriculture, commerce, and manufactures, respectively. Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the marshals shall file the several returns aforesaid, and also, an attested copy of the aggregate amount hereinafter directed, to be transmitted by them, respectively, to the Secretary of State, with the clerks of their respective districts, or superior courts, (as the case may be,) who are hereby directed to receive, and carefully to preserve the same. And be it further enacted, That every assistant shall receive at the rate of one dollar for every hundred persons by him returned, where such persons reside in the country; and where such persons reside in a city or town, containing more than three thousand persons, such assistant shall receive at the rate of one dollar for every three hundred persons; but where, from the dispersed situation of the inhabitants in some divisions, one dollar will be insufficient for one hundred persons, the marshals, with the approbation of the judges of their respective districts or territories, may make such further allowance to the assistants in such divisions as shall be deemed an adequate compensation;—Provided, the same does not exceed one dollar and twenty five cents for every fifty persons by them returned;—Provided further, that before any assistant, as aforesaid, shall be entitled to receive said compensation, he shall take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation, before some judge or justice of the peace, authorized to administer the same to wit:—I, A. B. do solemnly swear or affirm, that the number of persons set forth in the return made by me, agreeably to the provisions of the act, entitled "An act to provide for taking the fourth census or enumeration of the inhabitants of the United States, and for other purposes," have been ascertained by an actual inquiry at every dwelling-house, or of the head of every family, in exact conformity with the provisions of said act; and that I have, in every respect, fulfilled the duties required of me by said act; and that I have, in every respect, fulfilled the duties required of me by said act, to the best of my abilities, and that the return aforesaid is correct and true, according to the best of my knowledge and belief. Sec. 6. And be it further enacted, That each and every free person, more than sixteen years of age, whether heads of families or not, belonging to any family within any division, district, or territory, made or established within the United States, shall be, and hereby is, obliged to render to the assistant of the division, if required, a true account, to the best of his or her knowledge, of every person belonging to such family, respectively, according to the several descriptions aforesaid, on pain of forfeiting twenty dollars, to be sued for and recovered, in an action of debt, by such assistant; the one half to his own use, and the other half to the use of the United States.

Sec. 7. And be it further enacted, that each and every assistant, previous to making his return to the marshal, shall cause a correct copy, signed by himself, of the schedule containing the number of inhabitants within his division, to be set up at two of the most public places within the same, there to remain for the inspection of all concerned; for each of which copies, the said assistant shall be entitled to receive two dollars;—Provided, proof of the schedule having been set up and suffered to remain, shall be transmitted to the marshal, with the return of the number of persons; and in case any assistance shall fail to make such proof to the marshal, as aforesaid, he shall forfeit the compensation allowed him by this act.

Sec. 8. And be it further enacted, that the secretary of state shall be, and hereby is, authorized and required, to transmit to the marshals of the several districts and territories, regulations and instructions pursuant to this act, for carrying the same into effect, and also the forms contained therein, of the schedule, to be returned, and such other forms as may be necessary in carrying this act into execution, and proper interrogatories to be administered by the several persons to be employed in taking the enumeration.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That in those states composing two districts, and where part of a county may lie in each district, such county shall be considered as belonging to that district in which the court house of said county may be situated.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the several marshals and their assistants, at the time for taking the said census, to take, under the direction of the secretary of state, and according to such instructions as he shall give, and such forms as he shall prescribe, an account of the several manufacturing establishments, and their manufactures, within their several districts, territories, and divisions; the said assistants shall make return of the same to the marshals of their respective districts or territories; and the said marshals shall transmit the said returns, and abstracts thereof, to the secretary of state, at the same time at which they are, by this act, required, respectively, to make their returns to the secretary of state;—for the performance of which additional service, they shall, respectively, receive, as compensation, therefor, not exceeding twenty per centum in addition to the sums allowed by this act, to be apportioned in proportion to the service rendered, under the direction of the secretary of state.

Sec. 11. And be it further enacted, That in all cases where the superficial content of any county or parish shall exceed forty miles square, and the number of inhabitants in said parish or county shall not exceed two thousand five hundred, the marshal or assistants shall be allowed, with the approbation of the judges of the respective districts or territories, such further compensation as shall be deemed reasonable;—Provided the same does not exceed three dollars for every fifty persons by them returned.

Sec. 12. And be it further enacted, That when the aforesaid enumeration shall be completed, and returned to the office of the secretary of state, by the marshals of the states and territories, he shall direct the printers to congress, to print, for the use of the congress, fifteen hundred copies thereof.

ALMANACKS,

For sale at the GAZETTE OFFICE.

The republication in the Gazette of last week of the article from the Commentator, appears to have wounded the sensibility and injured the feelings of the editor of the Monitor. We judge so from several circumstances. The paragraph on the subject in his last paper, is one evidence of it; besides, one of the editors of the Gazette received a note from him on Wednesday evening last, of which the following is an extract:

"The article copied from the Commentator into the last Gazette, in relation to the Monitor, is accompanied by a communication signed Washington, representing it as containing 'home truths.' My object is, to ascertain whether you intended to express your approbation of that article, and to coincide with the sentiment of your anonymous correspondent; and to request you, if you did not so intend, to do me justice in your next paper. In making this request, I wish it to be distinctly understood, that I desire to avoid a controversy with you, unless it were really your intention to provoke one. I cannot but regard the manner in which the article was inserted, as conveying the idea to the public, that you meant to approve and adopt its assertions. If such were not your intention, I shall be happy to be convinced of my error."

In publishing the article from the Commentator, we certainly did not intend to adopt it, or the sentiment of our correspondent, as our own; nor did we design that the world should so understand it. The name of the author of "Washington" was left with us, and to him exclusively we expected responsibility would be attached, if any necessity for responsibility should exist.

It was never our wish to court a controversy with any of our brethren of the type. In republishing the article alluded to, such a motive did not enter our minds. But we wish it clearly understood, that we never will, on proper political or other occasions, within the province of the press, shrink from controversy—and we once, for all, avail ourselves of this opportunity to say, that in publishing communications we do not consider it an adoption of the sentiments of our correspondents as matter of course, unless there is no responsible author left. We should consider ourselves unworthy to conduct a free press, if we dreaded an investigation of sectional feeling or general principles.

HARTFORD CONVENTION.

The sixth number of "Massachusetts" is not given this week, principally on account of the press of advertisements, and foreign articles. We shall, however, endeavor to keep up with the Monitor, which still continues to issue to the world Harrison Gray Otis's defence of the convention. We take occasion here to offer our humble approbation to the spirited and manly article in the last Reporter on this subject, over the signature of "W"—and we shall have much pleasure in reading again the able document which he enclosed to that press.

SUMMARY.

The Bankrupt Bill, at our last dates, was still progressing in the Senate of the United States. Various amendments had been proposed—and among the rest one by Mr. Vanduyke, of Delaware, to extend its provisions to other classes of the community, besides the merchants. The amendment was incorporated in the bill, 25 to 13.

A bill is before each branch of the national legislature, for the adjustment of land titles in Louisiana, Missouri, and Arkansas. We know not the details; but presume that every description of Spanish grants is included.

Mr. Charles I. Nicholas, late a clerk in the United States Bank at Philadelphia, has been appointed by the mother board Cashier of the branch at Richmond.

The steam boat Swift, rigged as a barge, was to depart on the 5th inst. from New York for Rio de Janeiro.

The schooner Quaker, in sailing from Boston to the Chesapeake, was on the 6th of March capsized, and all on board washed off by the surge. Three officers and thirty eight seamen were lost.

BANK OF THE UNITED STATES.

It seems strange to us that Mr. Chavez, who is the head of the mother bank, should be so fickle in his policy; and adopt a reasoning from effects produced by his own administration. No one will doubt but that the severe operations of the Bank of the United States have constituted a powerful cause for the depreciation of western money in the Atlantic cities. After it was distinctly known in Philadelphia that the Bank of Kentucky had suspended specie payments, the national branch in Lexington was ordered to receive Kentucky paper. Three days afterwards, the instructions are withdrawn. For what general or special reasons we know not—nor are we sufficiently intimate with the Discount Office here to ascertain. But there is something rotten in Denmark.

KENTUCKY MONEY.

On Sunday evening last, the Branch Bank of the United States got instructions from the mother board to receive in payment of debts and discounts, due the institution, the notes of the Bank of Kentucky. By Wednesday night's mail these instructions were countermanded. So that hereafter the following notes only will be taken at the United States Branch at this place:

Bank of the United States and Branches: Bank of Virginia and branches. Farmers Bank of Virginia and branches. All the incorporated Banks in Charleston, S. C. Savannah & Augusta, G. New Orleans, New York and Albany, Baltimore, [except City Bank] Philadelphia and Northern Liberties.

State Bank at Trenton, Trenton Banking Company, State Bank at Camden, Bank at New Brunswick, N. J. Bank of Utica, Stephen Girard's Bank, Bath Bank, (Maine)

All the incorporated Banks in Boston & Salem.

Cumberland Banks, Portland, Maine. Newport Bank, R. I. Merchants Bank, Salem; Roger Williams Bank, Providence, R. I.

All the incorporated Banks of Connecticut.

We are authorized to announce Mr. JACOB KIZER, a candidate to represent this county in the next general assembly.

We are also authorized to announce GEORGE SHANNON, Esq. a candidate to represent this county in the same body.

Through the last Reporter, we learn that it is understood GERARD McKINNEY and JAMES E. DAVIS, Esqrs. will also be candidates.

Col. William Brown, of Harrison, has declined a re-election in the third congressional district. We understand that it is probable John T. Johnson, Esq. will be a candidate to succeed him.

We learn that the Steam Boat FAYETTE, belonging to a company of gentlemen in this place, arrived at Louisville on Sunday evening last from New Orleans, with full freight and passengers, in eighteen running days from New Orleans. We are happy that the first enterprise of this new boat has been so successful.

For the Kentucky Gazette. Messrs. Editors—Dr. Franklin has remarked, that from his experience, he thought, Printers of Newspapers ought not to control post offices, although he had been himself a post master. The advice of the American Sage appears to be not respected at Washington. Mr. Kendall, the Public Printer of this state, has informed the public that he has been appointed "Agent for the General Post Office" in Kentucky. Envolments doubtless, accompany the agency; or he would not of course accept it. His Mr. Kendall reflected, that he has, by accepting this agency, forfeited his office of public printer? He should recollect, that the laws of this state say, no person holding or exercising any office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be eligible to any office of trust or profit under this commonwealth; and that if he accepts the former, he forfeits the latter. The object of this regulation, is to prevent the influence of the Federal Government from corrupting the state officers, and to make them faithful to the state; and whether that can be attained by the United States government in the shape of agency or office, the effect being the same, the law is the same.

The Legislature of South Carolina, decided the principle at its last session, that a person elected to that body, who was a Director of the United States Branch Bank at Charleston, was not eligible; and it was not eligible there, I ask, how an officer, under the name of agent, can be here? The name of agent makes a man as much an officer, if he acquires trust or profit thereby, as if they were called president, sheriff, or constable. PYMM.

PARIS, Feb. 15. ASSASSINATION OF THE DUKE DE BERRI.

The inhabitants of this metropolis have been horror-struck by an atrocious assassination, perpetrated last night, at 10 o'clock, on the person of his royal highness the duke de Berri. The prince attended the duchess to her carriage in quitting the opera-house; she was already seated, when a person passing quickly by his royal highness, encircled him with his left arm, and thrust a poniard, four inches and a half long, in his right breast up to the hilt. On feeling the wound he uttered a cry and fell senseless into the arms of his servants. The duchess herself sprang out of the carriage, and drew the dagger from the duke's breast, whose only exclamation was "Je me meurs." The duke was conveyed into one of the saloons for the opera, and the nearest surgeon sent for. The surgeon bled the prince three times, and washed the wound with warm lotions. The internal hemorrhage making an alarming progress, cupping was applied, which made his royal highness suffer so much, that he exclaimed: "M. Dupuytren, je pardonne moi—Je sens ma position—Je ne crois pas que cela serve a rien."

M. de Cazes was seated in one corner of the chamber, in indescribable grief. The assassin was interrogated in the presence of M. de Cazes, and declared, boldly declared, that he had meditated the murder ever since 1814, and that he had quitted Metz for Calais in the intention of assassinating the king on his return, but that he arrived too late; that he had at length resolved on the extermination of the duke de Berri, as the youngest of the family, knowing that nature would soon dispense him from the necessity of abridging the days of the king. The monster was employed in the saddle of the king.

M. Jacquinet de Pampelune examined him: a second dagger was found on his person.

Mademoiselle fainted twice, nor would the duchess d'Orleans leave the bedside of the prince till the king ordered her away.

The duke de Berri died at 6 o'clock, in the arms of his Majesty.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

"The assassin is about 30 years of age; his name is Louvel. It appears he was one of those who went and returned with Bonaparte from Elba, and has since been employed, up to the very time of the fatal deed, in his majesty's hunting establishment."

"The prince having expressed a desire to see his infant daughter, when she was brought to him in her cradle, at 4 o'clock in the morning, he kissed her babe and gave it his benediction, pronouncing these remarkable words:—'Poor infant, I wish that you may be less unfortunate than the rest of my family.'"

"The duchess de Berri fell senseless when her august partner expired. She was torn from the side of her departed husband. When she recovered, she threw herself on her knees before the king, and implored him to grant her leave to return to Naples."

The assassin's name is Pierre Joseph Louvel. He has been examined before the ministers, when his replies were as follows:

Q. What induced you to commit this crime?—A. My opinions, my sentiments.

Q. What are they?—A. I think the Bourbons are tyrants, and most cruel enemies of France.

Q. In that supposition, why did you attack the duke de Berri in preference to the rest?—A. Because he is the youngest prince of the royal family, and seemed to be destined to perpetuate that race hostile to France.

Q. Do you repent your act?—A. No.

Q. Had you any instigator, any accomplice?—A. None.

Yesterday, [the 14th inst.] an individual, amongst a group on the Place Carrousel, uttered many seditious expressions, and dared to exhibit a ferocious joy, at the deed which has plunged France in mourning. The persons around him, whom sentiments of grief had induced to repair to the vicinity of the Louvre, took him into custody, and escorted him to the Police office.—Journal des Debates.

An extraordinary proposition was made in the chamber of deputies by M. de Cousseguier, viz. that the Chamber should agree to an act of impeachment against M. de Cazes, "as an accomplice in the assassination of the duke de Berri." Such a motion, as might be expected, produced a strong sensation among the members, and the violent murmurs which burst forth from all sides, compelled the proposer to descend from the tribune.

Accounts from Spain are to a late date, and the affairs of the Spanish insurgents appear to be declining. The suppression of the revolt may strengthen the government, but its occurrence must have weakened the nation, as regards foreign objects.

In the evening of the 24th of Jan. col. Botalde with some other individuals, attempted to cause a rising of the people of Cadiz—but was unsuccessful, and he fled. Gov. Valdes issued a proclamation, that no assembly of more than three persons should be allowed—that no persons should be permitted to stop in taverns, and all tables and benches are to be withdrawn—coffee houses to be closed at dark, and no visitors to remain therein—and all the king's arms to be returned on pain of death. Jan. 23, king Ferdinand sent a complimentary letter to the people of Cadiz.

On the 15th ult. the revolutionary gen. D'Evereux, gave in England an entertainment to the deputies from Venezuela, New Grenada and Buenos Ayres, on taking his final leave of England. Among the toasts was "Sir F. Flood, and the Board of Commissioners for colonizing the General's extensive tract of land in S. America."

Extract of a letter from Mr. Everett, charge d'affaires of the United States at the Hague, to the secretary of state, dated Hague, Dec. 23, 1819.

The king of Spain has appointed the Marechal de Camp Vivas, successor to Mr. Onis, and he is now in Paris on his way to his destination.

A Paris paper of the 18th ult. states, that Count Elie Decazes is no longer minister. Yesterday morning all the family of Decazes, stepfather, stepmother, wife and sister, prostrated themselves at his feet, who for more than 48 hours had been in a state of dejection, and supplicated him to fly from the storm which was gathering over his head. Moved by their attachment, and overcome with fear, this favorite minister went to the Thuilleries at 1 o'clock, and begged the king to accept of his resignation, acknowledging that this measure was indispensable to the safety of the monarchy.

The alarm in the public is such, that a great number of foreigners quit Paris with precipitation, being fearful that a revolution is about to take place. Yesterday and to-day it was almost impossible to obtain post horses. No doubt the assassination of the duke de Berri is the first cause of this alarm; but it is not probable that it has been increased by the imprudent remarks of the newspapers, and by the measures proposed by the government to the Chambers?

When Louvel, the assassin, was interrogated by the minister of the interior, the following question was put to him.

"As you have said that you did not fear death, why did you fly when you assassinated the prince?—He replied, coolly, to assassinate another."

When his food was brought to him, he refused to receive it, because it was lean, and said that it would not give him strength enough to sustain the numerous questions that were put to him.

These answers of Louvel are astonishing, but the following is still more horrible. Wretch, said a magistrate to him, do you know that the prince has been so kind as to ask the king's pardon for his murderer? I do not, answered Louvel, shedding tears.

You are moved, continued the magistrate, with so generous and noble an act. If this excellent prince could revive, you would not commit again so great a crime? Yes, I would, answered Louvel.

It is said that M. de Cazes has dared to present himself at St. Cloud, the residence of the duchess de Berri. He was not introduced, and it is added, that, as soon as she heard his name pronounced, the princess eagerly caught her infant in her arms and fled to her apartment.

In the chamber of Peers, M. de Cazes, himself, appeared, with an ordinance of the king constituting that chamber, pursuant to the 38th article of the charter, and the 57th of the penal code, a Judicial Tribunal, for the purpose of trying forthwith the criminal. In the course of the short speech with which he prefaced this ordinance, M. de Cazes made the following observations. They are an additional proof of the political motive of the assassin:—

"If this crime," said the Minister, "fills our hearts with profound indignation, what must be our feelings, when the confessions of the criminal himself, (who glories in his offence) informs us, that the august individual who has fallen, was not the only one whose death was meditated, but that all those upon whom our destinies rest, to whom we were forever linked our fidelity and love, were condemned; and that the most sacred life, as well as the most necessary to the country, had equally its fatal termination in the designs of the criminal."

Such was the terrific declaration of the Prime Minister of France to the assembled Peers. Can it be possible, then, that the wretched Louvel is without accomplices?

PARIS, Feb. 13.

The Madrid Gazette has not arrived with the post of to-day. Cadiz was to submit on the 31st January, to the Government proclaimed by the Insurrectional army, in conformity to a Convention concluded on the 28th, between the Bishop Cienfuegos and General Don Antonio Quiroga. We are also informed, that Coruna has pronounced in favour of the Constitution and Cortes. The greatest part of the letters from Spain received at Bordeaux, from the 5th to the 7th, have on the head of them, "Liberty to Constitution."

From the Constitutionnel, 13th Feb. Yesterday in the morning, M. Vives, a general in the Spanish service, and charged with a diplomatic mission to the Congress of the United States of America, arrived at Paris.

In England, his majesty George the Fourth, had commenced his royal duties by altering the church litany, and forbidding prayers to be offered for the queen, as usual, and consulting the great law officers of the crown, as to the best mode of divorcing her.

Every commission held under the Crown, in consequence of the death of the British king, must be revived, and the fees to the Lord Chancellor, for appending the Great Seal will amount to a very large sum.

Madrid, Feb. 7.—The Minister, Lozano, and several other persons who have had the confidence of the king have been arrested. The captain general of the province executed in person, the king's orders and has sent them into exile.

Amers, Feb. 16.—Direct from Spain. We have received positive news of the occupation of Cadiz by the insurgents.

Extract of a letter from the Princess of Wales dated Marseilles, December 26, 1819.

"During the five years of my long absence from my dear old England, I can assure you it has been the first happy moment I felt, having received such satisfactory information respecting the feelings of the people of England towards me. It has been the most gratifying communication to my mind, and I trust in Heaven I shall ever continue to deserve their good opinion. My traducers and enemies in England, have again held secret inquisition at Milan, through the means of spies, and many old servants who have been sent from the house for bad conduct."

A Mr. C—, Mr. P—, a Col. B—, and Lord S—, have been making all sorts of enquiry into my private conduct. My legal advisers were informed of this in April last, and I should have gone to London at that period, had I not been otherwise advised, it being the wish of my legal advisers that they should first see me in France. I came to Lyons for that purpose, and after waiting anxiously for their arrival for some weeks, I found they could not meet me. The air being too cold for my health, I took the resolution of fixing my winter residence at Marseilles, where I have been two months, and have expected to see my legal advisers, but I have again been disappointed, and Heaven knows when they will be able to meet me. I have been much alarmed about a rumour relating to our ever-beloved and lamented King's health; if on the event of any thing happening to our revered monarch, I put my only trust in the generosity of the great nation, to protect me from the hands of mine enemies. I have great pleasure to inform you that all my debts in England and Italy have been paid."

"CAROLINE, Princess of Wales."

Extract of a letter from her royal highness the princess of Wales dated Marseilles, Jan. 6.

I should not have taken up my pen so soon to trouble you, if I had not this morning received a letter from Paris from a particular friend, which communication stated to me, that the English Ambassador mentioned the impossibility of his paying me due respect.—And assured my friend that the government of Paris, he feared, would make my residence there far from agreeable, and my friend advised me not to visit Paris under such circumstances. I never had any wish to visit that metropolis, but the desire alone of seeing my legal advisers, and that was the sole object of my travelling into France. I am so uncomfortable here under such a government, that I intend leaving Marseilles on the 20th of this month, and shall return into Italy. In case my presence should be necessary in England, I will come by sea, and not expose myself to the possibility of being badly received by the family of the Bourbons. The present King, when in a distressed situation, was well received by my late father's court at Brunswick-palace, and every comfort was afforded to him: but such great personages have the talent to forget where they have received civilities. In a strange country I think the daughter should at least have been kindly received, without pomp or parade, but in a friendly way; that was all I expected as I travelled incognito."

South America.

The following information has been furnished us from a highly respectable source, on which a perfect reliance may be placed.

News from Angostura to the beginning of January, reached this city yesterday. The progress of the Patriots in New Grenada, continued with great rapidity. On the 21st of October last, a battalion of the division, destined to act upon the South, entered Popayan: which place was precipitately abandoned by the Royalists, at the approach of the Patriots. Great numbers of deserters join the Patriots, in spite of the excommunications which the bishops have fulminated against the rebels, at the request of the Spanish chiefs. This powerful auxiliary of despotism some time ago, seems to have lost efficacy with the rebels. The next news will probably inform us of the emancipation of Quito, and the approach of the Patriots to the frontiers of the vice royalty of Lima, where their success was well known, and very much feared by the royal authorities of the capital of Peru, according to the communications received in the United States, a few days past, from the officers of the Macedonian Army. General Bolivar left Angostura for the army on the 24th of December; on the 14th of the same month, General Bolivar appeared before congress, and gave an account of the campaign in New Grenada, with that frankness and modesty which only belongs to the chief of a republic.

He also communicated to congress, the ardent desire of the people of New Grenada for the union of that country with Venezuela. A committee was appointed composed of members from New Grenada and Venezuela, to prepare a bill for the union of these two countries. On the 17th the law of the union of New Grenada and Venezuela was passed, and these two countries form at present the Republic of Columbia.

The new organization of the state required the appointment of a President & Vice President of the Republic; and three vice presidents, for the great departments in which the republic has been divided by the fundamental law. According to the constitution, congress is vested with the authority to nominate to those appointments, and they elected by a unanimous vote General Simon Bolivar President and F. A. Zea, Vice President of the Republic of Columbia; J. G. Rosario Vice President of the Department of Venezuela, and General F. Santander Vice President of Cundinamarca. The nomination for a Vice President for the department of Quito, was left by Congress to the people of that department.

By a decree of the President of the Republic, under date of the 18th December, J. R. Revenga was appointed Secretary of State and Finances and Director General of the same, which stations were vacated by the appointment of J. G. Roscio to the vice presidency of the department of Venezuela.

Many other communications of a diplomatic character, were also made by the President Bolivar: The Vice President of the Republic Mr. Zea, and Mr. Sulazar, two distinguished characters, natives of New Grenada have been charged with particularly interesting missions to different powers; they were to depart from Angostura at the commencement of February with direction to this metropolis, and we may be informed very soon of their arrival in the United States.—Wash. City Gaz.

Insurrection in St. Jago de Cuba.

Captain Doane, of sloop Roxana, from Havana, states that an insurrection among the black population had taken place at St. Jago de Cuba, the account of which reached Havana about ten days before he sailed. The governor of Havana had fitted out an expedition consisting of two transport ships, under convoy of a sloop of war, which sailed for St. Jago on the 3d, and capt. D. fell in with them on the 5th, off Cape Florida. Capt. Doane did not understand the strength of the force which had embarked in the expedition, nor did he understand whether the insurrection was considered very alarming; but thinks it was not, from the tardiness with which the expedition was fitted out.

Death of Com. Decatur.

THE DUEL.—On the morning of the 22d inst. a duel was fought between Com. Decatur, one of the board of navy commissioners, and com. Barron, near Bladensburg. Com. Bainbridge acted as second to the former, and captain J. D. Elliot to the latter. The distance was only eight paces. At the first fire they both fell wounded; com. Decatur mortally (and survived only ten minutes in the evening, after he received the ball of his antagonist through the abdomen) and com. Barron severely on the hip. The cause of the quarrel we are not distinctly informed of.—NAT. REG.

Commodore Barron, it will be recollected, was suspended for five years, for alleged misconduct in the Chesapeake frigate in 1807, when she was attacked by the British ship Leopard—a particular account of which and of the proceedings thereon, may be seen by referring to the 1st vol. of the Register, page 49. The navy list runs thus—Captains Murray, Rodgers, Barron, Bainbridge, Campbell, Decatur, &c. With the expiration of his suspension, com. Barron resumed his rank, and though we believe he never has been on duty since the Chesapeake affair, it is said that he recently claimed the command of the Columbus 74, as the senior of commodore Bainbridge, which claim was resisted by all the navy board, and especially by Decatur—who had succeeded Barron in the command of the Chesapeake, on her return to port after being attacked by the Leopard. Former heart-burnings were revived—and the rencontre took place which the nation will long deplore.

The excitement at Washington City, when Decatur's case was known, was without parallel. A "drawing-room," as it is called, was to have been held that evening at the president's house, which was postponed—and the residence of the commodore was surrounded by an anxious multitude until his decease was announced. He suffered much.—NILES' REG.

Robbery of the Mail!

Federal Republican Office Extra.
Saturday morning, 10 o'clock.
We have just learnt that the Great Eastern Mail had again been robbed. The horses have been found near Herzing Run, with only their bridles on. Nothing has as yet been heard of the driver, carriage or mail.

We respectfully suggest that such of the citizens of Baltimore who have horses, immediately form themselves into detachments and scour the country, with a view of apprehending the robber.

Those who approve of this suggestion are requested to meet, forthwith, at Monument Square.

POSTSCRIPT.—The Mail has been found eight miles from Baltimore, with the cart, the letters all plundered; and the DRIVER TIED TO A TREE, AND SHOT THRO' THE HEART!

The stockholders of the Farmers' and Mechanics bank of Lexington, met at their banking house on Monday last, and decided, by a large majority, on suspending the operations of the bank on and after the first of May next; but instructed the directors to do no act which might be construed by the judiciary into a surrender or abandonment of the charter. The funds now on hand, (with the exception of the specie) and which may hereafter be collected, are directed to be distributed among the stockholders, on a pledge of Stock, preference being given to such stockholders as have nothing on loan. The stockholders have determined on this course, under the impression that it may be expedient at some future period, to renew the operations of the bank, in which event they will be able to commence with a respectable metallic capital.—Reporter.

(COMMUNICATED.)

DIED.—On Tuesday, the 25th day of January, 1820, MISS POLLY R. FINCH, in the bloom of her life, aged 19 years, the daughter of Mr. William Finch of Woodford, Ken. She died of a lingering complaint, which baffled the skill of the physician who attended in her illness; also the tender parents' aid, and all the affections of her brothers and sisters, and the prayers and intercessions of the minister who visited her a few days before her death. But all was in vain. The Master had come, and called for her. She had many friends, but none of them could reclaim the spirit; for Jesus said, "where I am, there shall my friends be."

On Sunday evening, her father sent for me to come and see his daughter, who was at the point of death, & greatly desired to see me. Hearing that she was not expected to live till morning, I delayed no time, but started and arrived there between eight and nine in the night. It was an inclement evening, and after drying and warming myself, I walked into her room. She was very glad to see me, and asked me to pray for her, and also let me know she had wanted prayer for some time; but it appeared she had neglected to let her tender father know it. As soon as he knew her wish, he sent for me without delay. She was very weak, and I saw that her time was short. I asked her if she had any hope of being saved, or if she had thought of eternity? She replied she had—two years ago, she had been alarmed under a sermon I delivered. But at times it wore off, especially when in company with her young companions; and that she never heard me preach afterwards, but it left deep remorse on her mind—that one week past, she had obtained a hope in the Lord Jesus. She let me know that her grand mother had come to see her, and told her it was time to think of eternity, and that her exhortation was much blessed. But she was so weak, it was painful for her to speak, or to convey her ideas. She said if she should live, she would join the church of which I am a member. I told her as it was painful to her to converse, I would ask her every material question about the work of Grace in her heart, and she gave me full evidence that the Lord had brought her from Death unto Life, and that she was prepared to die; which gave satisfaction to her father & friends, although none of them professed religion. I read a chapter, and after singing several hymns, I prayed for her. After some time I went to bed; in the morning I walked into her room, and found her very smart, for she had rested well and was much refreshed. After singing & praying, I was about to start home, but being informed it was her request that I should preach a sermon before I left the house; for it seems that she thought it would be the last she would ever hear in this world. I preached from the 34th psalm, 19th verse—"Many are the afflictions of the righteous, but the Lord delivereth him out of them all." She expressed herself much gratified. I bid her farewell, and returned home. But alas! the chariot wheels of death were moving very fast, and the king of terrors was just at hand. However, I had all reason to believe she was prepared to meet his fatal blow; as a perfect resignation pervaded her mind, with a strong hope which removed all fears, and that she would meet death without any terror, trusting in her blessed Jesus, for she spoke the language of a Heaven-born soul. How sweet it is, to die in the arms of Jesus! He can make a dying bed softer than downy pillows—while all the waves of Jordan must roll back at his command! O let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his. But how wonderful was the dealings of the Almighty with this young lady! It seems she was informed of her death by a dream. Four months previous to her death, she dreamed that the 25th day of January she should die. She told her dream, and it soon was spread abroad. The Thursday before her death she was taken in a faintly way, and to all appearance was gone, to fetch breath no more. Her mother said to her father that Polly was gone, and she was sorry for one thing—the old gentleman wished to know what it was. She informed him that his daughter wished to talk to him for more than a week past; but it was now too late. Deep remorse with distress took possession of his mind, to think it was forever too late, and he should never know what she wanted to talk to him about; and whilst, (although she was gone to awake no more) she suddenly came to again and revived before the hopes of all present, her father took his chair and sat by her bed side, and told her he was willing to hear anything she wished to say to him. How solemn the scene, to see a much-beloved daughter preaching to her ancient father and friends! It looked like one sent from the dead, to warn him to repent; for she clasped her father round the neck and thanked him for his care and attention, and that he had done all in his power to save her life. But all had failed, and she must die. She urged him to repent, to make his peace with the Lord, and get religion, or else a separation must take place in the world to come—unless he was born again, he could never be seen; and she then called her two oldest brothers, and exhorted them to repent and mend their ways, and believe in Jesus before it was too late. It seems that her mind was expanded for all the family, from her father and mother down to her brothers and sister and to the poor black people. She exhorted and gave good advice—and when she had done her duty, she seemed composed. We will now return to her dream. She lived several days, at length the 25th day rolled round, and many come to see her dream fulfilled. She inquired of her mother and aunt to know what day of the month it was; they avoided telling her, through fear that it would frighten her. At length she enquired of her cousin, who faithfully told her it was the 25th day. She replied it was her time to go, and did not seem the least agitated; but requested that I would preach her funeral sermon. About one half hour by sun, in the evening, she bid adieu and fell a sleep in the arms of her beloved Jesus, where she will rest till he comes in the clouds of Heaven to awake his sleeping saints; then we shall see her again—and may her friends and dear relatives be prepared to meet her, where death can no more separate, but where they shall spend a long and everlasting day in love and praise. May this narrative be the life and rise of many precious souls, and may she still preach, though being dead; for it is only the Christian that can die in peace, and we may all remember that in a very little time the place that knows us now, will know us no more; and that there is no act of pardon past in the cold grave to which we haste.

"But darkness, death, and long despair, Reigned eternal silence there. When blooming youth is snatched away, By death's resistless hand, Our hearts the mournful tribute pay, Which pity may demand."

This narrative was written by John Edwards, minister of the Gospel, and Pastor to the Baptist Church of Christ, on Glen's Creek, Woodford county, K.

Turkey Red, Yellow, & Nankeen Dying.
THE Subscriber proposes to dye the above colors, and if a sufficient supply of Kentucky raised madder can be procured, will warrant the red to be of superior brilliancy and durability, to any that has yet been imported to the western country, which many persons can testify who have purchased cotton yarn of that color, at my factory, about 12 years since. Although this color has gone out of use for some years, yet it may be advantageously revived by filling it on blue warp, for chambrays, and is perhaps, the most beautiful specimen of domestic manufacture. The yellow will be beautiful, of various shades, from a pale to a rich gold color. And the Nankeens are warranted to be so far superior to the East India nankeen color, as to be indistinguishable, while a fibre of the cloth is remaining. Cloths dyed in this way, are more durable than when dyed of the nankeen color made with copers, as the keen particles of iron in copers, must cut the fibres of the cloth, and produce what is commonly called "a rotten color."

Various other colors will be dyed as the business may progress, by the encouragement of a public already sufficiently convinced of the propriety of making every thing at home.

Articles left to be dyed, will be punctually attended to.

WESTERN HOTEL,

NO. 238, MARKET STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

Sign of Gen. Washington.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has taken that well known establishment in Market st. next door to the Pittsburgh Mail Stage Office, and lately occupied by Mr. George Yehe. To those who have been accustomed to resort to this house, it is unnecessary to point out its superior advantages. For the information of others, however, he deems it proper to state that this situation is central, high, healthy and convenient to business; an extensive range of backbuildings, consisting of lodging rooms, afford a fine view of the city to the eastward, and admit of a free and uninterrupted circulation of air, and what will give them a decided preference in the opinion of many, is the attachment thereto of balconies, so constructed as not only to afford pleasant promenades, but easy means of escape in the event of necessity from any sudden alarm of fire.

The great western Stages start every morning from the door, and on the premises is one of the best Livery Stables in the city, conducted by Mr. John Tomlinson, where travellers' horses will be faithfully attended to. With these advantages, and some further improvements now making, added to his own unremitting exertions to please, the Subscriber confidently hopes for, and very respectfully solicits, a share public patronage.
